Energy Cysts

Just as the physical body after an injury forms a protective barrier to cause separation and protection so it can heal, so does our emotional body mobilize its healing mechanisms to stimulate repair. When one cannot find congruency between the hurtful emotional experience, the reasons for the emotional pain and our coping strategies, denial of the pain ensues. This then is the beginning of an emotional energy cyst which will start to take residence in our unconscious due to the fact that our desire is to deny the experience.

We have all had many life experiences that fit this scenario and we all have a number of these unconscious and unfinished emotional energy cysts residing within our energetic fields. These standing wave form fields work like energetic magnets attracting more of the exact same experiences that we are denying. What would be the purpose of this you might ask? As dynamic living beings our innate desire is to heal, to repair and to expand our knowledge so that we may grow. So with unhealed emotions working as attractor fields we draw to us what we have denied so that we give ourselves another opportunity to remove the incongruence's that are present. These incongruence's keep us from becoming all of who we are and inhibit our capacities to fully know ourselves.

As we bravely walk down the razor thin path of emancipation unfinished personal issues will bubble up from the depths of our unconscious sometimes in ways we never expected. Our goal and objective is to suspend judgment, acknowledge truth and embrace the heart of forgiveness for all.
